Nedcam strengthens its position through partnership with Nobel Capital Partners

Nedcam, leading manufacturer of high-quality moulds for the composites industry, has announced an important milestone in its development. The company enters into a partnership with investment company Nobel Capital Partners.

The aim of the collaboration is to accelerate Nedcam's growth through both geographical expansion and entering into new market segments. In this context, the activities of German Modellbau Nachtigall were recently acquired. Moreover, investments were made in installing Europe's leading XXL 3D printer in Heerenveen, making Nedcam the first player in its market to offer a fully circular proposition to its customers.

Founders Erwin van Maaren and Jan Volker both remain involved in the further growth of Nedcam as directors and shareholders.

Nedcam to the next level

"The decision to partner with Nobel Capital Partners stems from our ambition to maintain and continue Nedcam's strong growth in recent years," says Erwin van Maaren. "We want to accelerate the company to the next level. In this regard, we think we are taking the right step with the addition of an active investment partner like Nobel. In the choice for Nobel, the personal approach and the shared vision of innovation, professionalism and sustainable growth were central for us."
